Given consistently tight budgets year after year, the State and Local Pensions: What Now? present potential for a decrease in federal funding even if for programs that are not directly related to state pensions or healthcare the existing underfunded programs, and the fact that most states must balance their budget each year and must stop shifting funds to achieve a balanced budget states have no ability to put off planning for the future. But even the relatively healthy plans face three challenges ahead: an excessive concentration of plan assets in equities; the risk that steep benefit cuts for new hires will harm workforce quality; and the constraints plans face in adjusting future benefits for current employees.

An employee of 20 years could qualify for a pension based on 25 years of contrib
